VISIT TO THE CORCOVADO

Duration: 4 hours

The Corcovado is a granite peak 710 meters high, located in the Tijuca Forest, offering a privileged view of the city of Rio de Janeiro and Guanabara Bay. It is famous for hosting at its summit the Christ the Redeemer statue, one of the main symbols of the city and the country. The Corcovado railway, departing from the Cosme Velho station, was inaugurated in 1884. Stretching 3,824 meters, it is the first in the country built exclusively for tourism purposes. The train, older than the statue itself, transported the necessary parts for its construction during the four years of work. In 1910, this line was the first in Brazil to be electrified, and the old steam trains were replaced by electric engines.

RIO DE JANEIRO OPTIONS

ASCENT OF SUGARLOAF MOUNTAIN

Duration: 4 hours

The ascent of Sugarloaf Mountain is done by cable car in two stages: the first trip takes you to the top of Urca Hill, where you can already enjoy a breathtaking view of the city. On the second cable car, you will reach the summit of Sugarloaf Mountain. This name evokes the blocks of refined sugar placed in clay molds for transport by boat during the sugar cane trade era. However, it is possible that this explanation is merely popular etymology, and the name might derive from the Tupi-Guarani word Pau-nh-acuqua ("big hill" in French). This peak, a monolithic granite block, is unique among the city's peaks as it rises directly from the sea. It is located on a peninsula at the entrance to Guanabara Bay.

Houses inspired by French architecture were constructed there, some of which still remain. In 1872, the "bonde" (tram) arrived, becoming the symbol of the neighborhood. Since 1896, the bonde has provided access to downtown, crossing over the Lapa Arches, a former disused aqueduct.
